“Your thesis or dissertation publication can make you expert in your field”

Many Doctoral dissertations and Masters thesis are Valuable and interesting sources of knowledge, but too often are rarely read. The ISBN number found on the verso of every book is the key to commercial book distribution. Without an ISBN number, most bookstores such as Barnes & Noble, Amazon etc., do not have access to it. Remarkably, most graduate works are never assigned this important identification number. As a result, they are completely isolated from main stream commercial distribution channels, and seldom become easily accessible to many people. Consequently, few may ever have an opportunity to read your work.

Our partner university will get your academic work easily accessible to students, researchers and the general public by distributing it through thousands of booksellers, providing on-line access, reducing cost of acquisition, and speeding delivery to those interested.

Most thesis and dissertations address specialized markets usually served by academic journals. Unfortunately, only a review or abstract can be published. Publishing through our partner university's publishing service is a valuable research contribution. It makes the entire work easily accessible and provides exposure and convenience beyond traditional microfilming. In addition, publishing through The partner university's publishing service is an excellent way to determine your works commercial marketability while retaining full control of the copyright.

The partner university's publishing service will make your work available to more people than ever!
